Shipping Notes.

The steamer Kinu will be due from Maui and Hawaii to-morrow morning. The barkentine S. G. Wilder has been moved out in the stream to await sugar. The brig W. G. Irwin is on the Marine Railway receiving a general overhauling. The sailing of the steamer W. G. Hall for windward ports was delayed until 11 o'clock this morning. The S. S. Pele was mistaken for the S. S. Australia this morning, both telephones reporting the latter twenty miles off. There must be some resemblance somewhere, but where except perhaps in the smoke, it can't be said.

LOCAL AND GENERAL NEWS.

Makae Island to-night.

This is Fire Department meeting week.

S. S. Australia to-morrow morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Only five lottery letters to-day, with a sixth in type laid over.

Mr. Oyster will arrive at the Beaver to-morrow by the S. S. Australia.

St. Louis College will re-open for its next school term on Monday next.

No passengers for the Volcano went by the W. G. Hall this morning.

Diamond Head, 3 p.m.—Weather clear, wind fresh northeast. Steamer Pele off port.

The Band will give a moonlight concert at Makae Island, Kapiolani Park, this evening.

H. S. Townsend returned to Lahaina after a short visit by the steamer W. G. Hall this morning.

Residents of Kapalama complain that the bone mill out there makes them sick with its fearful stench.

Two prisoners, a native and a Japanese, were returned to Kona, Hawaii, on the steamer W. G. Hall this morning.

A party of ladies and gentlemen went out in a wagonette to Waikiki last night to enjoy the bright moonlight and otherwise have a good time. One of the boys had a bugle which he tooted for all he was worth.

Charles Leonard, who advertises a carriage stand in this paper, does not wish to be confounded with a person of the same surname, who skipped out a while ago after doing the town to some extent.

Chief Justice Judd left on the steamer W. G. Hall this morning to hold Circuit Court at Waiohina, Hawaii. Mr. Chas. Croighton, Deputy Attorney-General, went along to prosecute criminal cases. There are only six of such cases, so that the term is expected to be short.

Alfred Ryan was arrested yesterday for protracted drunkenness at the instigation of his wife, who stated that he had taken the children's clothes time and again to sell in order to get money to buy drink. This morning Ryan was given three months on the reef by Police Justice Hopkins.

Capt. E. Hopkins left for Maui by the W. G. Hall, in charge of a Japanese prisoner named Inada who is self-accused of the murder of a fellow-countryman, for which two other Japanese are now awaiting execution in Oahu Jail. The prisoner is held for another crime also. He is to be given every opportunity for proving on the ground that he is the murderer instead of the ones waiting to be hanged.

A HORSE THIEF.

Captured at Kakaako After a Prolonged Search.

As will be remembered the BULLETIN reported last week that Mr. E. L. Marshall found a bay filly which had been missing for nearly two months and for which he had advertised. Mr. Marshall had a warrant issued for the arrest of one suspected of the theft of the horse, a man named Thomas Spencer. The police scoured the country but Spencer could not be found. Word was received the other day, however, that Spencer was at Waialua, and had stolen another horse and disappeared. It was thought that he had left on a steamer for the other islands. But like a bad penny he again turned up. Information was received at the Police Station yesterday that Thomas Spencer was seen near the seawall in the vicinity of the pumping ground, and Police Officers Louis Touissant and A. McGurn were sent after him, and sure enough there was Spencer. He was brought to the Station, where he was charged with the larceny of a horse valued at $50, the property of E. L. Marshall. An officer is expected from Waialua to cause the arrest of Spencer for the theft of a horse at that place.

Old Rags Wanted.

Clean white rags, suitable for bandages, are wanted for use at the Bishop Home and the Boys' Home, Leper Settlement, Molokai. Ring up 281 Mutual telephone, and they will be sent for, or leave the same at the office of the Board of Health, or at J. T. Waterhouse's, Queen street.

THE LEGISLATURE.

EIGHTY-THIRD DAY.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 1, 1892.

Morning Session.

The Assembly convened at 10 o'clock for prayer. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Noble Thurston asked the President if there was any communication yet received from Her Majesty. President Walker said that none had been received.

Noble Thurston said that he considered that ample time had been given Her Majesty to formulate a Cabinet and he would therefore move the House proceed to consider the business on the table and such new business as may come before them. He did not consider that there was any good reason existing which would warrant longer waiting.

Noble Macfarlane was not in favor of the suggestion to proceed with the business of the House. A committee appointed by a caucus of members had waited upon Her Majesty only this morning to suggest a Cabinet for Her approval. This was an act in which it was endeavored to have Her Majesty establish a precedent. It required serious consideration on the part of Her Majesty and he considered that it would be disrespectful to say the least, and he was opposed to any such action.

Rep. R. W. Wilcox was in favor of the motion made by Noble Thurston that the business of the House be proceeded with. The House has given ample time to Her Majesty to appoint a Cabinet. She has not called upon any of the leaders of the House for assistance, on the contrary, advice has been sought from those outside. The Queen did not seem willing to follow the example set her by crowned heads abroad in Europe and therefore he thought that it would be unnecessary to wait longer for the appearance of a Cabinet.

Noble Cornwell supported the idea advanced by Noble Macfarlane. The committee appointed by the caucus of thirty-one (which caucus had been held last night) had only called on Her Majesty this morning. A call was made to make Her Majesty establish a precedent and he therefore considered that some time should be allowed for consideration.

Noble Thurston said that some of the members, from their remarks, seemed to imply that he had intended to show disrespect to Her Majesty or assumption of a tone of discourtesy in the matter. He would say that there was no law or even custom which would prevent the House going on with the business if so desired, it made no difference whether there was a Cabinet present or not. The situation had never before occurred because, previously, on the dismissal of one Cabinet, another was ready. The four Ministers were now in office just as much as before, they were now in their various offices performing the duties thereof. It would not be disrespectful to Her Majesty if we went on with the business of the House. Some of the members consider that the caucus was that of the Reform party solely, but he would say that such was not the case—it was a caucus of those who wished to see a principle enforced and consisted of members drawn from all three parties and who were now joined in one party simply to carry out a principle.

Rep. Nawahi said that it looked as if some of the members desired to set sail on the ship and leave the officers behind. They seemed to wish to go along without a captain or pilot. The sending of a committee to Her Majesty was not the act of the Assembly, but of a caucus. The Queen was entitled to more time for consideration, and members should not endeavor to force action by bluff or bounce. The Sovereign being a woman was entitled to more consideration than if of the sterner sex.

Rep. Ashford said that the argument was not only a petty one but a petti-coat contention and was a disgraceful one also. There was no reason to wait longer; he, on behalf of himself and his constituents and the constituents of all other members, protested against the delay, he considered it was an insult to the House. He considered that it was beneath the dignity of the Assembly to longer brook delay, and they should stop playing puppets to the strings pulled in the Palace. Even if there was no Constitutional provision to appoint immediately there was none to cause an adjournment for one hour or one minute. The figure of a ship at sea was not a happy one, for suppose the officers had deserted the vessel as these Ministers had, is the vessel to sit on their haunches and let the ship drift to sea or the devil? As an humble member of the ship of state, he did not propose to sit quiet escent while the ship drifted further. Some sharp remarks were directed by the speaker against the action of Noble Cornwell on account of endeavor to re-establish Minister Parker in office.

Rep. Smith suggested that unnecessary and exasperating personal remarks were not in good taste at present.

Rep. Ashford said that he was only making a legitimate contention that the action was despicable by whom ever committed, even if committed by the Noble from Maui. He considered the House had been monkeyed with long enough and advised that they stop acting monkey any longer.

Rep. Smith said that it was the duty of members to lay aside all personal feelings in the discussion of the matter and be patient. There were times in men's lives when the most pushing had to wait patiently; it was trying, very trying, but he was willing to wait a longer time.

Noble Thurston (questioning)—How long do you propose to wait?

Rep. Smith considered that it would be better to wait longer, they would gain more by moderation than by hasty action. It may be annoying and if it was not for the peculiar circumstances existing he would favor going on to-day. As has been stated a majority of the House in caucus have only just forwarded a communication to Her Majesty. The condition of public affairs at present counseled prudence, patience and wisdom. He believed that the strength of the House would be shown by the patience displayed. He was willing to wait.

Noble Thurston. How long, a week?

Rep. Smith said that he could not say how long. It depended upon the turn affairs might take. The interests of the country were more important to him than his own personal convenience.

Rep. Waipulani mentioned that it had been said that the old Ministers might present themselves that they were still in office but he would say that those were the Ministers which the House had said that they had no confidence in. How could they advise Her Majesty, advise the House or answer questions? Another thing, without a Ministry present to answer questions how could the House proceed with its business? He believed in waiting patiently.

Noble Baldwin would vote against the motion to proceed with the business of the House. He had intended to bring in an amendment but that was not now necessary. If no Cabinet was announced in a day or two he would favor going on. He considered that some of the members were inconsistent in their remarks with regard to the delay. He knew that those very individuals would have been very sorry if a Cabinet had been appointed before the caucus resolution had been presented to Her Majesty. It seemed right and proper that Her Majesty should have time to consider the resolution.

Rep. Bush favored a longer wait especially as the caucus committee had only waited on Her Majesty this morning.

Noble Cornwell rose to a question of privilege and explained his action in regard to circulating the petition for the retention of Minister Parker in the Cabinet, also that he had the signatures of 25 members, who had voluntarily signed to hold Parker there.

Rep. White said that the longer the controversy was kept up the nearer they were to getting in hot water. He favored a longer wait. Nearly all the members had their little hatchet to sharpen and each one wished a Minister in that would assist in turning the grindstone. (Laughter.) It was well known that three days' grace was generally given on a payable note but these attorneys in the House seemed to have forgotten that rule and they do not want to give any grace on this caucus note. (Laughter.)

At 10:55 on motion the House adjourned.

Vote of Thanks.
